Reviews

It is one of the best books. Indeed, it really is a play, nevertheless an amazing and interesting literature. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

SENT off my letter to our Vakeel, Mirza Abbas Khan, early next morning, not having passed a good night, as an attack of fever and ague had kept me awake till near morning. At 8 A.m. the Vakeel came to see me, and, like a good man as he was, brought a horse for me to ride, as he insisted on m v going to stay with him. Our route lay along the Kheeaba, or principal street of the city, crowded at that hour with a motley stream of men and animals; and as a canal runs down the centre and has trees on each side, this street is a favourite place of resort. We saw many men mounted, and leading their long strings of horses with great heavy numda coverings; kafilas of donkeys, with pine wood and kah or bltoosa and camels with merchandise, profusions of grapes and Straw chaff. melons, vegetables of all sorts, and the usual sights of a crowded Eastern bazaar. When we came near the great mosque, we dived down a small street. to the right, which was arched over--above being the houses of some Bey. At the end of this dark tunnel was a door that led us into the outer court of the Vakeel s house. Having dismounted,...
